Meet the New Navisite: A Modern Managed Cloud Service Provider Accelerating IT Transformation for Thousands of Global Brands

Acquired companies combine under the Navisite brand, building upon their collective DNA, to deliver platform-agnostic, best-fit cloud solutions and services

Andover, Mass. – March 3, 2020 – As the result of a series of acquisitions, there is a major new player in the managed cloud services market: the new Navisite. The company features the core cloud, application and hosting services of the legacy Navisite company, combined with the next-generation cloud services and expertise of RDX, clckwrk and ClearDB, to help businesses accelerate IT transformation.

With more than two decades of experience helping thousands of companies modernize their IT operations, Navisite is designed to meet the service and support requirements of enterprises looking to transform their IT investment and operations from cost-center to business driver. Navisite does this by providing high-touch services and unmatched technical and functional expertise to help customers successfully navigate change, digitize their IT operations and move their businesses forward.

“Today is the culmination of almost two years of work identifying and acquiring the strategic components and team members to create the new Navisite,” said Navisite CEO Mark Clayman. “As part of this, we’ve forged close relationships with the world’s leading cloud providers and built a customer-centric business model with proven delivery methodologies. Our platform-agnostic approach is core to this model, enabling us to partner with customers to deliver the best possible solution for their business demands.”

Clayman added that this customer-centric approach to managed cloud services builds the trust required for customers to rely on Navisite for their most important business systems and what Navisite refers to as “navigating the now.”

Navisite boasts hundreds of certified experts across all major cloud platforms, including Amazon Web Services (AWS), Microsoft® Azure®, Google Cloud™ and more. The company also has deep expertise in database and application management, enabling customers to drive innovation and efficiency through an optimal mix of on-premises, hosted, cloud, multi-cloud and hybrid cloud environments.

“Navisite has become a formidable player in the managed cloud services space, with deep expertise and a proven track record of customer success,” said Philbert Shih, Managing Director at independent research and consulting firm Structure Research. “With the team that they have pulled together, it will be exciting to watch Navisite’s continued growth in this market—particularly among fast-growth enterprises that want to successfully overcome the challenges of IT modernization and transform their businesses.”
